Airline turnaround expert to take charge at Air India

Gebremariam's appointment as CEO and MD comes four months after Wilson's resignation

MUMBAI

Air India has appointed Ethiopian Airlines Group chief executive Tewelde Gebremariam as its new chief executive and managing director, four months after Campbell Wilson resigned. The appointment comes as the Tata Group-owned carrier enters the next phase of its transformation, focused on expansion and profitability.

The appointment follows a global search overseen by Air India's board, which evaluated internal and external candidates before unanimously selecting Gebremariam.

He will formally assume charge after receiving security clearance from the ministry of home affairs and bureau of civil aviation security, a mandatory requirement for airline CEOs in India. The regulatory vetting is a sensitive step for Air India. Prior to Wilson's appointment, the airline had selected former Turkish Airlines chairman Ilker Ayçi for the role. However, Ayçi had declined the position weeks before taking office following widespread push-back over his political ties.

The leadership change sets the stage for a new contest in Indian aviation, with Air India led by Gebremariam and IndiGo by former International Air Transport Association director general Willie Walsh. As the two carriers compete on international expansion and operational excellence, the contrast in succession planning is notable. Air India took four months to name a CEO, while IndiGo appointed Walsh within three weeks of Pieter Elbers' abrupt exit.

Gebremariam, 61, led Ethiopian Airlines Group for more than a decade, during which time the airline became Africa's largest and most profitable carrier. The group's revenue surged more than fourfold, while fleet nearly tripled, the company said in a statement. He also oversaw the development of maintenance, repair and overhaul (MRO) facilities, aviation training infrastructure and global hub operations.

line's head office in Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa. In a LinkedIn post, Gebremariam wrote that under his watch, Ethiopian Airlines' revenue grew from $1 billion in 2011 to $5 billion by 2022, and profit reached $1 billion. Air India will be hoping to replicate this turnaround as it battles mounting losses and navigates an increasingly challenging operating environment. According to Tata Sons' annual report for FY26, Air India Group's combined net loss more than doubled to ₹22,238 crore in FY26.

while combined revenue fell nearly 9% to ₹71,870 crore.

The airline said Gebremariam's experience in leading large-scale airline turnarounds, expanding international operations and building profitable aviation businesses made him the preferred choice to steer Air India through its next stage of growth. "Having completed the initial phase of stabilization, integration, and fleet commitments under Campbell's guidance, Air India is now entering a critical execution and expansion era," Air India chairman N. Chandrababur said.

He added that Gebremariam's operational expertise and experience in building one of the world's most efficient airline groups would be instrumental in establishing Air India as a premier global carrier.

Gebremariam described the appointment as "a profound honour" and said he looked forward to building a world-class airline. Over the past four years, he has led TGM Advisory Services while serving as a senior strategic adviser to Delta Air Lines.

Air India CEO Campbell Wilson had resigned. On 7 April, the airline confirmed his resignation and said Wilson had conveyed his intention to step down in 2026 to Chandrababur back in 2024 and, since then, had been working to ensure the organization and leadership team was on a stable footing for the transition.

Wilson's exit and Gebremariam's appointment come at a crucial juncture for Air India as Chandrababur oversees one of the world's most ambitious airline turnarounds. Addressing shareholders, Chandrababur reiterated that reviving the Tata Group-owned carrier would be a 5-10 year journey, acknowledging the formidable challenges it faced in FY26.

Akasa bets on profits, backs airport-airline ownership

Akasa Air, India's youngest airline, says the country should not close the door on airport operators investing in airlines, emphasizing that more capital and increased competition are precisely what the domestic aviation sector requires.

In an interview with Mint, chief executive (CEO) Vinay Dube said concerns over potential conflicts of interest could be addressed via strong regulation rather than outright restrictions. "We are always eager to serve our country well and doing so means supporting more air travel, fostering increased competition and offering more choice to consumers," he said.

Last month The Economic Times reported that the Adani Group had written to the Airports Authority of India seeking a waiver of a clause barring airport operators from holding over 10% stake in a scheduled airline. The report had fuelled speculation that the conglomerate, which operates eight airports in India, was exploring an entry into commercial aviation.

The reported proposal sharply divided the aviation industry. Rahul Bhatia, co-founder and MD of IndiGo, had opposed allowing airport operators to own airlines, arguing that such a policy would create a "massive conflict of interest" and hurt consumers. In contrast, FLY91 managing director and CEO Manoj Chacko, in an interview to Mint, welcomed the possibility, provided it was accompanied by transparent governance and safeguards.

Addressing concerns that

Akasa Air CEO Vinay Dube said stronger regulation by Indian authorities can address conflict-of-interest concerns.

airport owners could favour their own airlines, Dube said the responsibility will be with the regulators to establish and enforce proper safeguards.

"The government has rules in place. It understands that the considerations are for a private airport operator...A mature regulator will account for all of that. That shouldn't take away from the fact that India needs competition."

Last month, Adani Group CEO Jyeshth Singh sought to ally the concerns, telling analysts after the earnings of flagship Adani Enterprises Ltd that its interest was "to support development of an airline for regional connectivity."

As Akasa completes four years of operation and market leader IndiGo marks its 20th anniversary, Dube said the airline's ambition is not to chase market share but to build a profitable, financially resilient business. The approach mirrors the philosophy often articulated by Bhatia that IndiGo was never about size but execution.

"We're focused on financial stability, profitability. We're focused on the consumer,"

Dube said on Wednesday in Mumbai, rejecting the notion that an airline's success is determined by its market share.

While Akasa holds about 6% of domestic market, Dube said it has never viewed market share as its primary objective.

Dube said several airlines globally have demonstrated that profitability is not necessarily linked to scale. "Between 2010 and 2019, four out of the five most profitable carriers in the US had market shares of only 2-4%," he said. "It's not a market share game."

IndiGo continues to dominate India's domestic aviation market with about two-thirds of the passenger traffic. "When we started Akasa, IndiGo had 64-65% market share. We entered with eyes open as we believed India had room for at least one more well-run airline," Dube added.

Instead of pursuing market share gains, Akasa will focus on maintaining a competitive cost structure and delivering a consistent customer experience, Dube said, brushing aside concerns that geopolitical tensions and volatile fuel prices could derail the airline's long-term plans.
